“The primary purpose of the AMA-CPM® is to help individuals realize their potential and simultaneously help organizations achieve their goals through excellent management practice,” states MCE Managing Director Patrick Faniel.

“This credential is going to change the world of management. In the future, it may become the right of passage for individuals with an organization or within a career track.

We are proud to work with 12PM Consulting and launch with them this initiative in Greece”

International Management Certification

Explore the key skills that successful managers need in today's complex business world

The world has changed. And this means we need to constantly update our skills/competences to adapt to the new reality. Recipes of the past don't work anymore, as we are faced with situations that are completely new (crisis, technology, disruptive competition, ...). Organizations are faced with changes that are accelerating and the need for highly capable and effective managers is more critical than ever. Yet, as both C-suite leaders and managers acknowledge, there has been a glaring lack of a clear definition of the manager's role and a universally respected credential for validating a manager's proficiency.

A professional certification is always an asset - for finding a new job, for your career path and for setting standards. Project Managers are PMP certified. Marketing Managers are CMI and Google certified. HR Managers have SHRM. But what about managers? AMA-CPM® is a unique certification – the international standard of excellence for managers. It certifies, if you pass the exam, that you master the key skills that successful managers need to demonstrate in our complex world.

This comprehensive management certification program will help individuals affirm and showcase their knowledge and skills in management, while enabling organizations to identify and hire qualified managers who have met a set of established criteria.

The AMA-CPM® shows that a manager possesses not only extensive management knowledge but also the exceptional ability to apply it—with confidence.

Benefits

The program (and later the exam) focuses on four major content areas:

- Professional Effectiveness: Mastery of personal awareness and interpersonal skills.
- Business Acumen: Understanding of business operations.
- Analytical Intelligence: Application of systematic thinking, analysis and data interpretation.
- Relationship Management: Ability to establish and maintain professional relationships

Thanks to this partnership, alumni, clients and students will benefit from a significant offer on the preparation courses that will be organized jointly by 12PM Consulting and MCE.

Participation will allow the participants to apply for the AMA-CPM® exam.

Courses will be scheduled initially virtually and later both face-to-face and remotely.

If you are willing to take the AMA-CPM® exam, please get in touch with us to attend the course where you explore the key skills that successful managers need in today's complex business world.
